About the Workshop

Sub-Themes: Nature, Problems, Possibilities, Prospects, Methodologies, Characteristics, Style of Documentation, etc. in research.

A university is a space not only meant for the dissemination of knowledge but also for the creation of knowledge. The creation of knowledge is effected through critical researches in a given subject.

So far as research in literature is concerned, it is as much a maverick phenomenon as the very character of literature itself. It offers an inclusive study and thus stands out to be a multidisciplinary space of research by default. As such, the methodologies employed to carry out research in literature are also altogether different, and not comparable with any subjects of science and technology.

The proposed workshop intends to acquaint and equip the delegates with the dynamics, subtleties and typicality of research in literature in general and English literature in particular with a special focus on the documentation style and language of research.

Workshop Fee:

Research Scholars and Students	400/- (including GST)
Faculty and other Delegates	600/- (including GST)
