About the Topic

As knowledge has become an ever stronger driving force for the development of societies, role of universities and Higher Educational Institutions to disseminate knowledge has become more significant than ever before. They cannot survive as autocratic organization with no direct links to other social fields (Thoni & Schneller, 2010). Higher Educational Institutions are aware of the situation. In fact, UNESCO, UGC, NAAC and other similar organisations give importance to the interaction of Higher Educational Institution with the society. Faculties and students take up several projects which may be very useful and effective in poverty alleviation and improving life & work of people at the lower segment of society. Some other group of students and faculties are continuously interacting with society for improving their life.

Many Non-Governmental Organisations (NGO) and Corporate sectors are also working for improving life & work of the poor and deprived people.

This seminar which is organised by the Department of Humanities is going to provide a platform to discuss and share such experiences of College/University-NGO-Corporate Sector-Community partnership.

WHO MAY JOIN?

- Students and Faculties of any Stream of Higher Education.
- Representative from Non-Governmental Organisations (NGO)
